

Research Officer/Economic Analyst (m/f/d): Competition Economics (Berlin)

At NERA you will apply economic principles to provide clear and credible expert analyses that have an impact on important decisions by clients, judges, juries and regulators.

NERA's economists have been creating strategies, studies, reports, expert testimony and policy recommendations for regulatory authorities, governments and the world's leading law firms and corporations for over half a century. NERA Economic Consulting serves clients from over 25 offices across Europe, North America and Asia Pacific.

In the Competition Economics practice, you will work on high-profile cases conducting theoretical and empirical economic analysis. You will for example determine the extent to which the economic evidence is consistent with an infringement allegation, quantify the damage caused by a cartel, and advise the merging parties throughout the merger review process.

Your typical tasks will include:

- Conducting literature and data research
- Conceptual analysis applying the theoretical literature to the facts of a case
- Data cleaning, management and analysis and interpretation of results
- Active participation in drafting reports, memoranda, presentations and other work products

This job is for you if you:

- hold an excellent master's degree or PhD in economics/econometrics, statistics or a closely related field
- speak and write German/French and English fluently
- are able and willing to work under tight deadlines
- are familiar with data analysis using Stata and ideally have advanced programming skills (R, Python, Matlab)
- have relevant work experience or specialized in microeconomics, industrial organization or competition economics

What we offer:

- Attractive remuneration and benefits
- Learning from leading economists and industry experts
- High-profile cases and allowing you to have a real impact by applying economics theory daily
- Early responsibility in project work providing you with exceptional development perspectives
- A collaborative environment with and flat hierarchies
